Purpose
To define the authority of Indiana University Police Department's Chief Executive Officer (Associate Vice President for Public Safety and Institutional Assurance, Superintendent for Public Safety).

General Order
The Indiana University Police Department (IUPD) is a department of the Office of Public Safety and Institutional Assurance (PSIA) at Indiana University. All IUPD divisions operate under the executive leadership and with the explicit approval of the Superintendent for Public Safety.

Financial and budget management (1.1.7 a)
The Superintendent for Public Safety has final approval of all IUPD division budgets and subsequent expenditures. The Superintendent for Public Safety is responsible for any resource allocations, including identification, collaboration and exploitation of opportunities for efficient sharing of all IUPD personnel, equipment and training.

Personnel matters to include employee discipline (1.1.7 b)
The Superintendent for Public Safety sets performance standards in consultation with human resources for all IUPD personnel. The Superintendent for Public Safety actively facilitates and supports communication and collaboration among personnel in public safety activities across all organizational facets of Indiana University.

The Superintendent for Public Safety has final authority on all IUPD personnel matters to include hiring, discipline, and separation. Confidential information will be handled with discretion and tact when interacting with individuals at all levels.
Issuing and modifying agency policies and procedures (1.1.7 c)
The Superintendent for Public Safety provides executive leadership and direct expert oversight for strategy, policy, and practice for IUPD, including but not limited to the development, implementation, and continuous improvement of all programs and initiatives to support the overall mission of IUPD.

The Superintendent of Public Safety works with university and campus leadership to formulate and implement policies, procedures, and regulations, leading to consistent practices that are informed by university priorities and local campus context.
